

Material Disclaimer

_____ I understand that granite and/or engineered stone is a natural material and will vary in polish, color, structure, and movement. That Stone Innovations, Inc. does not guarantee an exact match to the samples provided in stores or displays. That inherent in these materials are visible fissures, pits, and inclusions that are not flaws in the stone. Fissures are very tiny hairline crevices in the stone surface; pits are surface air gaps created during rock formation that are revealed when slabs are cut and polished; and inclusions are clusters of mineral deposits of any color also created during rock formation. That fissures, pits, and inclusions are present through the entire thickness of the slab and that pieces may not match seam to seam due to movement of color and thickness of material. Also that material thickness can vary up to 1/4"

I have read and understand the above. By my initialling the point I have agreed to the terms and conditions outlined above.
